

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
1. The robber decided to leave empty-handed after he found ?	a corpse in the still emptiness of the house.
2. The passengers on the bus looked on in confusion as they forded through the River Clyde.	3
3. The playboy approached the main actress of the movie who felt very uncomfortable about it.	5
4. The anthropologist approached the chief of the natives who ?	eyed him warily, before stating clearly, ?No beads. No blankets.?
5. The inspector learnt that the handbag of the diplomat?s wife had been ...	rifled through in a hurry, conspicuously emptied of the diamonds.
6. The prime minister held a press conference and shortly afterwards ...	resigned for the good of the nation.
7. The conductor disliked the baritone singer of the choir which had about 30 members.	4
8. The head of state praised the work of the charities that ?	were predominantly white, middle class, and only dealt in mild horrors.
9. The lieutenant ordered that the floors of the battalion?s barracks were ...	stripped of their wooden planks to be used to line the freshly dug trenches.
10. The invited speaker switched on the microphone before ...	glancing around, then: ?My name is the Doctor.?

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
11. The TV channel announced a report on the duke which contained highly charged footage.	5
12. The screen showed error messages of the programme that ?	had not, in fact, been successful at stopping the system from being hacked.
13. The teenagers barricaded the main entrance of the school so that no one could get in.	5
14. The barman slid a whiskey and a beer over to the cowboy from the adverts.	5
15. The commentary delighted the organizer of the rally who was passionate about climate change.	2
16. The parade delighted the devotees of the queen who ?	were inherently privileged and only a little bit fascist.
17. The postman was scared off by a large dog, so next time ?	he brought food to appease it.
18. The expert claimed the earthquake was due to a seismic slip from drilling on an oil rig.	3
19. The tabloid questioned the landlord of the estate which still had combustible cladding.	5
20. The headmaster questioned the classmate of the bullies who ?	remained silent, fearful of repercussions.

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
21. Ever since the DEA cracked down on illicit drugs, dealers began investing in cryptocurrency.	4
22. The van driver nearly crashed into the pedestrians because he was staring at his phone.	5
23. The insurer appeased the tenant of the flat who complained about the water leak.	5
24. The baroness snubbed the housemaids of the millionaire who ?	subsequently noted her name in the neat little book of those bound for the guillotine after the revolution.
25. The accomplice of the recently convicted fraudster alleged they were only in it for the money.	5
26. Since the mountain was incredibly dangerous, the rock climbers ?	kept their eyes peeled for ravenous yetis.
27. The passenger forgave the attendant on the flight who refused to serve him alcohol.	5
28. The hooligan insulted the supporters of the foreign team that ?	revealed his own insecurity and impotence with their performance.
29. The fishermen hated the large swarms of jellyfish because they would clog their nets.	4
30. The overeager Crown Prosecutor alleged that the defendant ...	couldn't handle the truth.

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
31. The sleazy agent flattered the mistress of the house which was apparently up for sale.	3
32. The internet troll harassed the candidate of the Lib Dems who ?	promptly blocked them, saving everyone a good deal of time.
33. The old lady brought her troublesome grandchildren some ?	matches - the house was old, she was sure her son needed the insurance money anyway.
34. The picnic was going so well until swans from the pond feasted on all the bread.	5
35. The vegan encouraged the new diet of her friend which mainly consisted of crisps.	5
36. The arbiter encouraged a dialogue between the opponents that ?	resulted in an unlikely alliance between Italian Mafia and Russian Bratva.
37. The wizard invited acclaimed adventures to his castle to steal their vast riches.	1
38. The ranger of the forest near the city borders forbid ...	hooded figures and their suspicious, dripping cargo from entering.
39. The keynote enlightened the participants at the meeting which was rather boring until then.	4
40. The puppet show uplifted the children at the ward that ?	their eventual demise would surely be better than this.

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
41. The interviewer listened patiently before noticing that he did not pay attention.	1
42. When I was younger my mother used to read me bedtime stories about ?	old gods and the relics their worshippers left behind.
43. The foody criticized the dish by the head chef who was newly appointed.	4
44. The scientist criticised the methods of the study that ?	relied too heavily upon chocolate pudding consumption.
45. The skateboarders had to bandage up their knees after they ?	scraped them against the hot asphalt in the California sun.
46. The church choir had to stop unexpectedly after the organist ?.	orgasmed.
47. The data astounded the advocate of the standard model which predicted the exact opposite.	5
48. The shouting spooked the neighbour of the newlyweds who ?	had buried them in the back garden only hours before.
49. The soldiers charged into the jungle in the search of hidden Aztec artefacts.	5
50. The labourer loaded planks of timber onto the van before he drove off to the building site.	5

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
51. Mr Farage welcomed the proposal by the US president who was keen to exploit the NHS.	5
52. The receptionist welcomed the secretary of the diplomats who ?	waved her off with a sigh, ?Divas, all of them.?
53. After washing the salad with its firm green leaves, the scullion ...	resigned himself to its destruction - necessary for the heist.
54. The film was torn apart by cineastes, but most people thought it was too pretentious.	5
55. The priest cherished the book by the medieval bishop who later had become a saint.	5
56. The pop fan cherished the albums of the band that ?	she had abandoned to pursue her solo career.
57. The small island town held a celebration for its 50th annual ?	witchhunt.
58. Thanks to stricter speed checks on national motorways ...	the government was able to revel in the further impoverishment of its people.
59. The poet recited a sonnet about a princess who fell in love with a peasant.	5
60. The psychologist wrote an article on mental disorders that ?	manifested chiefly in writing lengthy ends to sentence fragments.

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
61. The woman complained that the bicycles of the neighbour's kids were leaving black marks.	5
62. To help the penguins digest, zookeepers urged patrons not to deep fry fish.	3
63. The constant rain frustrated the celebrities in the camp who hadn't had a proper meal for days.	3
64. The reviews frustrated the co-authors of the researcher who ?	knew Reviewer 2 was just being contrary at this point.
65. Shortly before the fully occupied passenger plane had landed, ...	snakes slithered their way towards the cockpit to make their bid for control of the aircraft.
66. Because of last night's TV documentary, the young woman vowed never to eat meat again.	5
67. The rich uncle visited the graduation of his niece which was held on campus.	5
68. The shooter missed two targets at the firing range that ?	subsequently caused him to fail his licensing exam.
69. The management of the successful supermarket chain planned ...	to endanger their workers by not enforcing social distancing in the soon to be crowded stores.
70. The pianist noted that the strings of the soloist's violin were ...	near to snapping from overuse.

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
71. The freshman looked up the notes from the tutor who had given the stats course.	5
72. The applicant read through the small print in the forms that ?	clearly stipulated at least one soul be paid to the corporation per annum.
73. Because of a considerable delay of the 7.30am train, ...	reimbursed its passengers.
74. They waded through dusty cobwebs in the attic until they found boxes full of old board games.	5
75. The guest congratulated the hostess of the party who was celebrating her latest promotion.	5
76. The principal congratulated the supervisor of the students who ?	would shortly thereafter be found guilty of grievous misconduct.
77. The politician blustered that future rioters will be facing the full force of the law.	5
78. The rainstorm raged on through the country, causing back-to-back traffic for miles.	5
79. The coach ridiculed the groundsman of the football pitch who was seemingly drunk.	5
80. The boss yelled at the trainees of the foreman who ?	were distributing anarchist propaganda.

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
81. Given the reports about quicksand, the adventurer decided the best would be to wait.	5
82. There were rumours that the contract of the team's manager had not been ...	renewed due to COVID funding issues.
83. The cardinal hired the painter of the famous fresco which graced the ceiling of the chapel.	5
84. The promoter hired the staffers of the catering firm that ?	solemnly swore only to poison select guests.
85. Before selling his mansion with all its antique interior, the earl ...	took his wife's portrait down from the wall: this wasn't home anymore.
86. The preschoolers rounded up as many snails as they could find for another busy day.	5
87. The burglars surprised the watchman of the bank which was located near the town hall.	5
88. The pay rise surprised the speaker of the unionists who ?	had come to distrust the corrupt corporation
89. The family found it difficult to adjust to living in France since none of them spoke French.	5
90. The cat impressed all at the talent show by demonstrating an understanding of calculus.	5

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
91. The cult members mourned the death of their guru which spelled the dawn of a new age to them.	5
92. The campaigners celebrated the outcome of the elections that ?	would maintain the status quo even after promises of reform.
93. The lollipop man watched the traffic as a trail of ducks waddled across the road.	5
94. Looking back over 3 months of receiving psychiatric help, he felt like ?	if he had put that money towards a boat like he had wanted to he would be much happier.
95. The sea inspired many artists of the 19th century who called themselves impressionists.	5
96. The theory inspired research on quantum particles that ?	eventually lead to the remote terraforming of Mars
97. The archaeologist discovered an unusual fossil which turned out to be a discarded film prop.	5
98. The hairdresser was chatting to her colleague in order to honour an old tradition of the trade.	3
99. The detective filed the testimony of the witness which was very detailed.	5
100. The secretary filed the letters from the department that ?	some poor archivist would have to refile later.

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
101. The doctor helped heal the horse's broken leg until she made a miraculous recovery.	5
102. The friendly mailman delivered a small parcel to ...	the lonely man with a ginger tabby who lived at the end of the road.
103. The kids chased the goose of the farmer who was milking the cows.	5
104. The cops chased the getaway car of the mobsters that ?	had stood in solidarity with protesters.
105. The priest looked after the asylum seekers because ...	he could sense the demonic presence lurking beneath their skin.
106. The musicians deflected criticisms of their new CD, stating ?	?That?s actually our porn demo.?
107. The businesswoman married the mayor of the city which was famous for its museums.	5
108. The negotiator met the deputies of the chairman who ?	promised to release one hostage as a show of good faith.
109. The famous entertainer was given a bunch of flowers after ...	her beloved husband passed from Stage 4 pancreatic cancer.
110. According to the monk in plaster cast, the steps down the temple were a bit steep.	5

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
111. The young girl fed the dog of the pensioner who hoarded old newspapers in his flat.	5
112. The admiral feared an attack on the support ships that ?	carried critical supplies.
113. The officer recalled that sails of the buccaneer's ship were ...	garish, yet shockingly fitting.
114. Because of unexpectedly harsh weather conditions in spring, ?	many orphans succumbed to typhus.
115. The toddler kissed the fluffy toy of her playmate who was crying for his mum.	5
116. The diva kissed the puppies at the dog shelter that ?	were the least flea ridden
117. The grandmaster reluctantly went to the chessboard where he faced a supercomputer.	5
118. The company was worried about their eco-friendly image, so they planted some trees.	5
119. The plumber cleared the kitchen sink of the old lady which had taken ages to drain.	5
120. The mechanic fixed the brakes of the F1 car that ?	had caused so many casualties.

Original Sentence	Participant Answer
121. The cook decided that wasabi was a poor choice because ?	of the sensation of burning nerve pain that accompanies eating wasabi.
122. Due to new safety regulations, the construction of the new bridge ?	would require another year to complete.
123. The angry mob chastened the healer of the village who was rumoured to practice witchcraft.	5
124. The defence lawyer blamed the victims of the conman who ?	had recently been chased out of the small town trailing accusations of witchcraft.
125. All her friends chipped in for her birthday to surprise her with ?	a better prosthetic leg, so she could run again.
126. The patient had to wait for quite some time before being told to come back another time.	5
127. The pirate guarded the treasure chest of the captain which was full of stolen gems.	5
128. The soldier guarded the gates to the palace that ?	houses the enemy of the people.
Time taken	56 mins